Director’s Note

This is a play about a family—a step-family—and choices. Part of the issue is the difference between loving people you choose to love rather than loving people you have to love because you live with them. Together Again... is a discovery. In any situation, if you’re perceptive enough, you learn from whatever happens.

Ultimately, this is a play about love, about people you know, facing problems you’ll recognize with a sense of humor and great understanding.

This is the first time a play by a student has been produced as a part of the Pardoe regular season. We all feel fortunate to bring it to you and hope that you find as much joy in it as we have. Remember the playwright’s name—you’ll be hearing about him!

Arthur's Place is a romantic fantasy... of sorts. It's also a garage, but Arthur has fixed it up a little. So now he's got a nice little place where his dreams and plans for the future can come together so he can live happily ever after. Of course, that could only happen if Arthur's place were located in Disneyland, which, unfortunately, it is not. The harsh realities of life and death are unavoidable. Recipient of the 1986 Mayhew Award for playwriting.
